

Are you interested in globalization trends of the 21st

Can your subject be developed into a global context?

Do you have fresh ideas about enhancing global studies in your field?

Want to enrich curricula with global dynamics?

The topics above are at the forefront of today’s discussions surrounding undergraduate education. Our mission is to give educators access to tools to take their course, their program, or their department global. Join The LEVIN Institute, and let’s ...

Go GLOBAL

www.Globalization101.org Users Workshop

The Levin Institute cordially invites all faculty and staff interested in global studies to join us at Levin for a collaborative conference on how global issues can be integrated into academic programs and how the innovative www.Globalization101.org website can be used and developed:

Tuesday, June 17th 9:00 AM – 4:00 PM

- Discuss the role of globalization within various courses
- Explore the effects of interactivity via online collaboration on learning
- Discuss the importance and implementation of globalizing curricula
- Meet colleagues from around the country who use Globalization101.org in their courses
- Network with a wide range of globally-minded academics

Levin is delighted to host all participants to a complementary wine and cheese Reception:

Monday, June 16th 4:00 PM – 7:00 PM

- Welcome Reception (including beverages and light fare) and networking opportunity
- Remarks by Levin President, Garrick Utley
- Remarks by Vice Provost and G101 Director, Dr. Lynne Rosansky

Please RSVP to Rebecca Smolar, Globalization101 Project Manager
rebecca.smolar@levininstitute.org • 212- 317-3566

The LEVIN Institute

116 East 55th Street • New York, New York 10022
www.levininstitute.org